Attachment & Trauma Network, Inc. PRESENTS

PARENTING SUMMIT

When Attachment Is Disordered

A Free Online Summit
from the Attachment & Trauma Network

You love your child. But sometimes nothing about their behavior makes sense.

When attachment is disrupted, families can find themselves navigating intense behaviors, strained relationships, schools and professionals who may see a very different child—and friends or relatives who simply don't understand.

For four days, the Attachment & Trauma Network is bringing together experts, parents, educators, clinicians, advocates, and people with lived experience for honest conversations about RAD, DSED, developmental trauma, and what can actually help.

DAY 1 — Why Is This Happening?
DAY 2 — Parenting When the Rules Don't Work
DAY 3 — When Nobody Else Gets It
DAY 4 — The Whole Family Matters

Come away with actual strategies and hope.
